Pontiff Silent on Easter

Unable to speak, ailing pope offers quiet blessing at Mass

VATICAN CITY | Pope John Paul II delivered an Easter Sunday blessing to tens of thousands of people in St. Peter's Square, but the ailing pontiff was unable to speak and managed only to greet the saddened crowd with a sign of the cross, bringing tears to many.

Aides had readied a microphone for the Easter appearance, and the pope tried to speak from his studio window overlooking the square. But after making a few sounds, he just blessed the crowd with his hand and the microphone was taken away.

For the first time since John Paul's papacy began in 1978, Easter Sunday Mass at the Vatican was celebrated without him as he continued his convalescence following two recent hospitalizations for breathing crises.

John Paul II

Vatican watchers had been anxiously awaiting John Paul's appearance for signs of how the 84-year-old pontiff was faring after Feb. 24 surgery to insert a tube in his throat to help him breathe. After the dramatic appearance, many in the crowd cried or applauded in sad appreciation for John Paul's pained efforts to greet them on the holiest day of the church calendar.

It fell to the Vatican's No. 2 official, Cardinal Angelo Sodano, to celebrate Mass in the flower-decked square jammed with more than 50,000 people. Millions more watched in TV hookups in 74 countries. NICOLE WINFIELD (AP)

A 105mm Howitzer round fired by the Utah Department of Transportation for avalanche control went off course Wednesday and exploded in the yard of Scott and Lori Connors' Pleasant Grove home, leaving a 6-foot-wide crater and filling the house with shrapnel and broken glass. No one was injured, though if the couple's 3-year-old son hadn't been lying on the floor watching TV, he could have been hit by shrapnel, according to the Deseret Morning News. ## The Long Yellow Arm of Justice

Crystal Senger had stopped at a convenience store to buy pop and cigarettes when she saw the clerk being choked in a robbery attempt. First, the Bismarck, N.D., teen called 911. Then she started throwing bananas — the closest thing she could find. Senger, 19, said she grew up playing baseball and used those skills to pelt the suspect in the head from about 10 feet away. "I was seven-for-seven," she said Thursday. "They were green bananas — not the ripe mushy ones — so they hurt." Senger said the suspect, whom police said was intoxicated, was stunned from getting hit by the flying fruit. He was arrested after a brief chase. (AP)

Magic Eight Balls

Two species of octopus have been caught on tape walking on two arms — odd behavior for the eight-limbed beasts, the journal Science reported Friday. Octopuses usually avoid predators by remaining still, to camouflage themselves. But scientists saw two Indonesian octopi wrap six arms around themselves — making them look like coconuts — and using the other two to move. In Australia, another species was seen raising two arms above its head before lifting four more and moving backward on the two remaining arms. The researchers described it as looking like "a clump of algae tip-toeing away." (AP)

He Honed His Drone

In what sounds like a potentially very annoying party trick, a Melbourne, Australia, man broke the world record for singing a continuous note at a constant volume and without wavering in pitch, the Australian Associated Press reported. Dean Frankel clocked in at 56.92 seconds, nearly doubling the previous record, on the episode of Aussie TV show "Enough Rope" airing Monday. Frankel said he used the ancient technique of throat singing to accomplish his feat, during which he actually sang two notes at once, one higher and one lower. (EXPRESS)

Data Cites Disparities In Income

Census: Black, Asian women with degrees earn more than whites

WASHINGTON | Black and Asian women with bachelor's degrees earn slightly more than similarly educated white women, and white men with four-year degrees make more than anyone else.

A white woman with a bachelor's degree typically earned nearly $37,800 in 2003, compared with nearly $43,700 for a college-educated Asian woman and $41,100 for a college-educated black woman, according to data being released Monday by the Census Bureau. Hispanic women took home slightly less at $37,600 a year.

A white male with a college diploma earns far more than any similarly educated man or woman — in excess of $66,000 a year, according to the data. Among men with bachelor's degrees, Asians earned more than $52,000 a year, Hispanics earned $49,000 and blacks earned more than $45,000.

Regardless of race or gender specifications, a college graduate on average earned over $51,000, compared with $28,000 for someone with only a high school diploma or an equivalent degree.

Schiavo's Parents Ask Crowd for Calm

Protests outside of Fla. woman's hospice laced with anger, frustration

PINELLAS PARK, FLA. | With their hopes fading and legal options exhausted, Terri Schiavo's family appeared quietly resigned Sunday to watching her die and asked protesters to spend Easter with their families as the severely brain-damaged woman went a ninth day without food or water.

Outside the hospice where Schiavo is being cared for, protesters were not as calm. Five were arrested as ministers attempted to bring Schiavo Easter communion.

Later, a priest said he gave Schiavo a drop of wine on her tongue. The Rev. Thaddeus Malanowski said he could not give her a fleck of bread because her tongue was dry.

Schiavo's husband, who a day earlier denied a request from his wife's parents that she be given communion, granted permission to offer the sacrament.

Boisterous protesting prompted Schiavo's brother, Bobby Schindler, to come out and ask the crowd to tone down their behavior.

"We are not going to solve the problem today by getting arrested," he told a crowd of about three dozen people. "We can change laws, but we are not going to change them today ... You are not speaking for our family."

The Schindlers said they would stop asking courts to intervene after the Florida Supreme Court rejected their most recent appeal Saturday. The parents were rebuffed repeatedly by federal courts after Congress passed an extraordinary law last weekend allowing the case to be heard by federal judges.

Protesters gathered Sunday despite the Schindlers' request that they spend Easter Sunday with their families. Schiavo's father, Bob Schindler, said the protesters were welcome back on Monday. (AP)

Report: DeLay Faced Medical Choice

LOS ANGELES | House Majority Leader Tom DeLay, who has helped lead a congressional effort to keep Terri Schiavo alive, joined members of his own family nearly 17 years ago in allowing doctors not to take extraordinary measures to extend his father's life, a newspaper reported Sunday.

DeLay had just been re-elected to his third term in Congress in 1988 when his father, Charles DeLay, was severely injured in an accident. As the elder DeLay's vital organs began failing, the family chose not to connect him to a dialysis machine or take other measures to prolong his life, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday, citing court documents, medical records and interviews.

"Tom knew, we all knew, his father wouldn't have wanted to live that way," Maxine DeLay, the congressman's 81-year-old mother, told the Times.

The congressman declined to be interviewed about his father's case, but a press aide said it was "entirely different than Terri Schiavo's."

"His father was on a ventilator and other machines to sustain him," said spokesman Dan Allen. (AP)

Conspiracy Afoot, Jackson Alleges

Asserting innocence, pop star sees parallels with Mandela, Ali

LOS ANGELES | Declaring himself "completely innocent" of child molestation charges, Michael Jackson said Sunday that he is the victim of a conspiracy and asked fans to pray for him.

In an interview with the Rev. Jesse Jackson broadcast on the Internet, the entertainer would not elaborate on his conspiracy belief, citing the court-imposed gag order that prevents him from discussing his trial in detail.

However, he said he believes he is just the latest of several "black luminaries" to be unjustly accused, citing former South African President Nelson Mandela and former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali as others.

"I would love your prayers and your goodwill, and please be patient and be with me and believe in me because I am completely, completely innocent. But please know a lot of conspiracy is going on as we speak," he said.

Jackson also said he is in "intense pain" since falling in the shower earlier this month, although he said at another point that his health was Separately, Judge Rodney S. Melville is to decide after a hearing in Jackson's trial Monday whether prosecutors may introduce past claims against the pop star to show jurors a pattern of alleged abuse.

The jury has been told of the 1993 allegations against Jackson by a then-13-year-old boy, but the judge can decide what details become evidence. JOHN ROGERS (AP)

Robotic Surgeons for the Battlefield

Military developing unmanned 'pods' to help soldiers under fire

SAN FRANCISCO | The Pentagon is awarding $12 million in grants on Monday to develop an unmanned "trauma pod" designed to use robots to perform full scalpel-and-stitch surgeries on wounded soldiers in battlefield conditions.

The researchers who pitched the Defense Department on the idea have prepared a futuristic "concept video" that seems straight out of a teen fantasy game, showing with color and sound effects the notion that robots in unmanned vehicles can operate on soldiers under enemy fire and then evacuate them.

Researchers caution that the project remains at least a decade away from appearing on any battlefields. Surgeons will need to manipulate the robot in real time, using technology that prevents any delays between their commands and the robot's actions. The "trauma pod" has to keep connected wirelessly without giving away its position to the enemy, and it has to be hardy enough to perform under fire.

Still, some of the initial technology is already being put to use in hospitals, and the goal of the initial project is modest — researchers hope to show that a surgeon, operating the robot remotely, can stitch together two blood vessels of a pig.

The $12 million project is the only such medical project of its kind the Pentagon is funding, spokeswoman Jan Walker said. PAUL ELIAS (AP)

Protest Ends in Violence

Gunfire erupts as Iraqi guards fight wage drop

BAGHDAD | Gunmen inside Iraq's Science and Technology Ministry headquarters opened fire Sunday on an angry crowd of off-duty security guards, killing one and wounding three others who were protesting wage reductions, police and witnesses said.

The shooting highlighted a potential new source of instability in a country crippled by war and insurgency: After steep raises following the ouster of Saddam Hussein two years ago, some public employees are now finding fewer Iraqi dinars in their pay envelopes.

On Sunday morning, about 100 men who guard Iraq's nuclear power plants and other Science Ministry sites demonstrated peacefully outside ministry headquarters. Participants, who were unarmed, said gunfire from windows in the seven-story building put a bloody end to the rally. The protest leader was among the wounded.

Interior Ministry spokesman Sabah Kahdim said a police investigation of the shooting was under way. RICHARD BOUDREAUX (L.A. TIMES)

Beirut Leader Vows to Restore Peace

Pro-Syrian president tries to calm fears of sectarian violence

BEIRUT, LEBANON | Pro-Syrian President Emile Lahoud pledged on Sunday to fight the violence gripping his country after three bombings in eight days raised fears of renewed sectarian bloodshed.

Syrian troops, meanwhile, continued dismantling positions in Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley on Sunday and headed home — a key demand of the United States and United Nations.

Saturday's blast in a mainly Christian suburb of Beirut injured five people and set at least six factories ablaze. It followed bombings targeting two Christian strongholds March 19 and 23 that killed three people.

"We will do all we can. We should all be united because this is how we can save the country," Lahoud, a Maronite Catholic and close

Lahoud

Syrian ally, vowed after attending an Easter Mass service. Lahoud has come under intense pressure from Lebanese opposition groups since the Feb. 14 assassination of former Prime Minister Rafik Hariri, which many here have blamed on Syrian and Lebanese authorities. Both governments deny the accusations.

Anti-Syrian leaders also have blamed Damascus and allied Lebanese security authorities for the recent bombings that they say are aimed at proving Syrian troops are needed to maintain security in Lebanon. HUSSEIN DAKROUB (AP)

U.N.: More Afghan Farmers Turning Away From Opium

Report cites fears of eradication as key factor

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Afghan farmers are growing less opium this year because of a government ban and fear that their crops will be destroyed in an internationally sponsored crackdown, according to a U.N. report released Sunday.

Afghan officials said the eradication drive would begin in days, but warned that more international aid was needed to uproot the world's largest illegal narcotics industry.

Opium production has boomed since the fall of the Taliban, sparking warnings that Afghanistan is becoming a "narco-state." Drug money equals 40 percent of legal national income.

The report said farmers had sown fewer opium poppies, which produce the raw material for heroin, in all but five of the country's 34 provinces. Last year, cultivation reached a record 323,700 acres and yielded nearly 90 percent of the world's opium. STEPHEN GRAHAM (AP)

Leaders of movement that ousted president seems headed for split

BISHKEK, KYRGYZSTAN | Former opposition leaders who took power here last week after protests ousted President Askar Akayev were at risk Sunday of splitting into rival camps.

The political contest pitted an outgoing parliament against a new one chosen in disputed elections that sparked the country's political crisis. On Sunday, former opposition leader Felix Kulov, newly appointed as chief of security forces, shocked many of his supporters by declaring that the outgoing parliament must yield authority to the new legislators, who are strongly pro-Akayev.

It was not immediately clear whether Kulov's statement marked a split with acting President Kurmanbek Bakiyev, a fellow opposition leader who, along with the old parliament, elevated Kulov. The putative allies are currently the country's two most powerful leaders — and also are potential rivals in a presidential election set for June 26.

Akayev supporters have been pressing their own bid for political dominance. They were backed Sunday by the country's Central Election Commission, which issued a decision assigning legitimacy to the new parliament. The Supreme Court had issued a ruling last week that favored the old parliament.

All sides, however, said they feared a three-way struggle for power could lead to renewed street protests and violent clashes, and key figures said they expected a compromise aimed at restoring stability and ending the risk of civil war.

Zimbabwe Bishop Calls for Protests

Tensions rise ahead of election that Mugabe's party is favored to win

HARARE, ZIMBABWE | One of Zimbabwe's most outspoken church leaders called Sunday for a peaceful uprising against President Robert Mugabe's autocratic rule, just days before a parliamentary election that rights groups say is already tainted from years of violence and intimidation.

Roman Catholic Archbishop Pius Ncube, of Zimbabwe's second city, Bulawayo, said he was willing to put on his vestments and lead a march to Mugabe's residence himself, but feared he would have to do it alone.

"The people are so scared," he said in an interview with the AP.

CRACKDOWN: Supporters of the opposition Movement for Democratic Change give the party's open hand salute during a rally in Harare on Sunday. Opposition officials later said police made nearly 200 arrests as people were leaving the event.

"You are not going to get that where people are so cowardly."

Meanwhile, the main opposition Movement for Democratic Change said in a statement that police on Sunday arrested nearly 200 of its supporters after a rally in the capital, Harare.

Mugabe, a former guerrilla leader, has led Zimbabwe since the end of white rule in 1980.

Ncube said he thinks Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union-Patriotic Front party will easily win Thursday's poll, which he said will be overseen by the military.

"I hope that people get so disillusioned that they really organize against the government and kick him out by a nonviolent, popular, mass uprising," Ncube said in a separate interview with the South African newspaper The Sunday Independent.

Ncube confirmed the comments to the AP, but was more guarded in an interview conducted over Zimbabwe's state-monitored telephone lines. Calls for unauthorized protests are punishable by up to 20 years in jail. MICHAEL HARTNACK (AP)

Bishop: Charles Should Apologize To Camilla's Ex

LONDON | A top Church of England official has called for Prince Charles to apologize to the ex-husband of his fiancée Camilla Parker Bowles, a newspaper reported Sunday.

Bishop David Stancliffe said church rules dictated Prince Charles must atone for committing adultery and he should apologize to Andrew Parker Bowles for breaking up his marriage, The Sunday Times said.

Stancliffe, a church authority on rules of worship, said the apology should come before the April 8 wedding. A spokesman for Charles' office would not comment.

The forthcoming marriage has upset some members of the church, which traditionally frowns on church remarriages for divorcees whose spouses are still alive. (AP)

Loudoun Divided Over Fast Growth

Western county residents push for secession

LEESBURG, VA. | The battle cries are familiar in America's fastest growing county: Those seeking slower growth want to protect the area's rural heritage, while the other side decries "snob zoning" that keeps new homeowners from getting their piece of the American Dream.

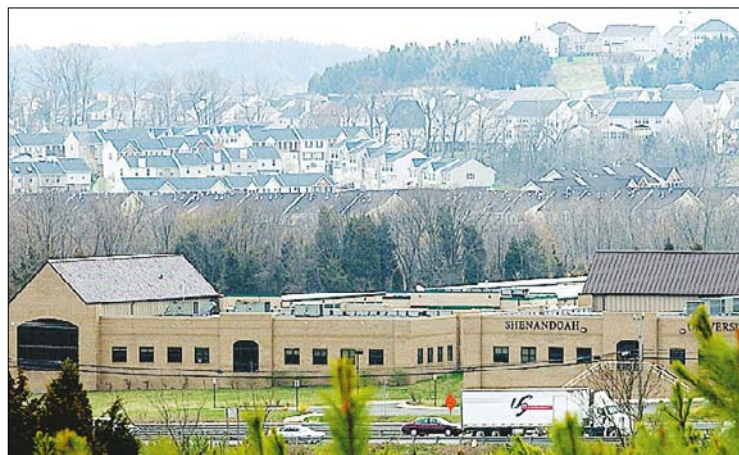

But in Loudoun County, where the population has increased from 86,000 in 1990 to 170,000 in 2000 to 222,000 in 2003, the Growth Wars have been particularly hard fought.

Some western Loudoun residents fed up with the current board's pro-growth stance have talked about seceding from Loudoun County and creating a new county that could resume earlier efforts to slow development.

While much of Northern Virginia has dealt with rampant growth in recent years, Loudoun County stands out.

Though many of the county's large private employers — including America Online, MCI, United Airlines and Flyi Inc., have laid off thousands of workers — growth continues.

The subdivisions of Beauregard Estates and Kincaid Forest near Leesburg, Va., are just some of the sprawling areas in Loudoun — the nation's fastest-growing county.

Talk of western secession began this month after the Virginia Supreme Court overturned on a technicality zoning rules put in place by the prior board. The rules would have limited homes to every 20 or 50 acres in the rural western part of the county. Unless the board re-enacts those provisions, landowners will be able to build on every three acres, potentially adding more than 50,000 homes to the county.

"It is classic suburban sprawl," said Jim Burton, a supervisor who represents parts of western Loudoun and has sought to curb growth. The current board "has totally underestimated the breadth and depth of anger" among citizens in western Loudoun. MATTHEW BARAKAT (AP)

Man Killed in Downtown Stabbing

WASHINGTON | Police in the nation's capital spent Sunday investigating a triple stabbing that occurred just five blocks east of the White House.

The incident occurred around 2:45 a.m. after what police say had been a gathering at a nightclub located in the Old Post Office Pavilion.

"Several men were on the corner and an argument broke out, one of the men pulled a knife," said Sergeant Joe Gentile, a spokesman for the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police Department.

One person was stabbed near the intersection of 11th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW. Two men who chased the alleged assailant westward along Pennsylvania Avenue also suffered knife wounds before the suspect drove away, witnesses said.

Ranjit Singh, 20, of the 300 block of Mercer St., in Phillipsburg, N.J., was pronounced dead at George Washington University Medical Center. The two men wounded in the altercation have not been identified because they are considered witnesses to a crime.

The MPD is offering a reward of up to $25,000 for information leading to an arrest and conviction in the case. (AP)

Q My SmarTrip card, which I got in 2003, recently stopped working on the first swipe, then altogether. I was told I needed a new card, which I got, but who knew they would need replacing?

A Actually, Metro is anticipating an increasing number of SmarTrip cards will stop working about now as the oldest cards, issued in 1999, reach or pass their three- to five-year life span, said

Murray Bond, director of SmarTrip operations (he's on his third card). And that's without any wear. Minor abuse, like bending, for example, can break the thin antenna inside.

It's also possible to have a defective card, in which case it'll be replaced for free, Bond said.

Potholes: Annual Passage of Spring

Local jurisdictions report street repairs are ahead of schedule

WASHINGTON | Ah, the sounds of spring: The birds chirping ... the pitter-patter of raindrops ... and the thud of hitting one of many potholes throughout the region.

Potholes form when moisture seeps into the pavement and then freezes, expands and thaws. The pavement weakens, and traffic loosens it more, eventually causing it to break up.

Transportation officials blame the weather, saying this year's freezing rain and fluctuating temperatures make it worse than last year.

However, there is some welcome news — repairs are progressing faster than they were in previous years, when repeated heavy snowstorms slowed progress. "It was much better than when we had all that snow two years ago," said Virginia Department of Transportation spokesman Ryan Hall.

The District also reports a good year. "There's been a steady trend downward in potholes," said D.C. Department of Transportation spokesman Bill Rice, who attributes this to less severe weather as well as preventive maintenance. He said D.C. has repaved more than 100 miles of roads in the last few years. HEATHER GREENFIELD (AP)

Help prevent Anthrax for Future Generations.

Be a Part of this Important Medical Research Study

A major outbreak of life-threatening anthrax would not just impact how we live today—it would change the lives of generations to come. To combat the threat of anthrax in the past, a vaccine has been used.

Now local doctors are conducting a medical research study to evaluate an investigational, second-generation vaccine for the prevention of anthrax.

You may qualify if you are:

- 18-55 years of age, and
- Currently in good health

Qualified participants will receive a study-related medical evaluation and study vaccine at no cost. Participants will not be exposed to anthrax as part of this study. Reimbursement for time and travel will be provided.

I've been "let go" — a polite way of saying "fired." My employer is keeping me on for 30 days. The problem is, many job applications ask my reason for leaving. How should I answer this question?

Any idea why you're being let go? Can you ask your boss for a good explanation you can relay to potential future employers? If it was due to general cuts, that one is easy. Otherwise, the excuse of it wasn't a good fit, your skills didn't match their needs, etc., usually works. If they're giving you 30 days, they might be willing to give you a good excuse for a future employer.

I work at a small company and I just gave notice. My co-workers were surprised and I think they're taking it personally. How do I finish on a good note?

Give them your forwarding information and leave a memo detailing your job, any good hints, etc., for them to pass along to your replacement. Tell your co-workers and boss how much you enjoyed your time there and that you hope to keep in touch. Good luck.

WOULD YOU WANT HER JOB?: There's "a certain level of intimacy" involved, so if you shrink from human contact, this job's not for you. One of the hardest aspects of her work, said Garrett, is clearly and confidently directing a client: "They don't have time to just lie around on the mat and wait for you."

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB: The popularity of Pilates has resulted in a pressing need for qualified instructors, according to the Pilates Method Alliance. Many studios, including Excel, offer their own training programs, and PMA plans to issue a standard certification exam in May.

North Carolina Lands in Final Four

No. 1 seed Tar Heels edge Badgers to win the Syracuse Regional

COLLEGE HOOPS | Rashad McCants made the big plays down the stretch, Sean May dominated inside and North Carolina is back in the Final Four for the first time in five years.

McCants swished a clutch 3-pointer and had two huge blocks on the other end, leading the top-seeded Tar Heels to an 88-82 victory over Wisconsin on Sunday in the final of the Syracuse Regional.

May led North Carolina (31-4) with 29 points and 12 rebounds, and Raymond Felton added 15 points, including four free throws in the final minute to seal it. But it was McCants who did the most to end a marvelous run by the sixth-seeded Badgers (25-9) and send the Tar Heels to the Final Four for the first time since 2000.

With North Carolina clinging to a three-point lead, McCants jumped high to swat away a 3 by Clayton Hanson with about 2 minutes left, Hanson's only miss of the second half from beyond the arc. Later, when Kammron Taylor drove to the basket, McCants again was there to block the shot.

NET WIN: North Carolina coach Roy Williams cuts down the nets on Sunday after leading his alma mater to the Final Four.

That proved to be enough for the win.

Alando Tucker scored 25 points for the Badgers, who never once tried to slow the pace. They scored more than 80 points for only the third time this season and the first since Dec. 27.

McCants finished with 21 points.

Spartans Tame the Wildcats

Michigan State rounds out Final Four with double OT win

COLLEGE HOOPS | Kentucky's 3-point prayer bounced on the rim four times before falling through, and everybody held their breath during a five-minute review.

It was a 3-pointer, all right, forcing overtime.

But Michigan State reclaimed the momentum in time to force a second extra session, earning the Spartans a trip to the Final Four — their fourth in seven years — with their trademark withering defense.

They will play North Carolina in the national semifinals.

As the final seconds of the first overtime ticked away, Kevin Torbert stood near halfcourt, smiled at his Michigan State teammates and screamed, "Let's go!" — and they did, not even allowing a last shot.

The Spartans made the most of their second overtime, pulling away 94-88 in the most gripping finish in a weekend filled with nail-biters to send Michigan State into the Final Four for the fourth time in seven years. JAIME ARON (AP)

Illinois Still Fighting After Comeback

With great season on the line, Illini survives to play in Saint Louis

COLLEGE HOOPS | Deron Williams looked up at the scoreboard, frowned and shook his head.

Down 15 with only four minutes to go, Illinois' season of triumph was about to slip away. All those victories, that near-perfect record, a path to the Final Four that seemed tailor-made for the Illini — none of it would matter. They'd be just another one of those teams that had teetered on the verge of greatness.

And that wasn't good enough. Not even close.

"I just said not to give up," Williams said. "That's what I said on the court. We've just got to keep fighting."

Led by Williams, Illinois (36-1)

mounted a furious comeback that is sure to become an NCAA tournament classic. The point guard scored 14 of his 22 points in the last four minutes of regulation and overtime as Illinois forced overtime and then hung on to beat Arizona 80-79 and advance to the Final Four.

"It's incredible," forward Roger Powell Jr. said. "We were meant to be in St. Louis."

And this is the kind of victory that could propel them to a national championship.

"Coaches have told me, to win the national championship you've got to win a close game, make a big shot," Illinois coach Bruce Weber said after Saturday's win. "Well, we did it today."

Now everyone knows the Illini have that ability, thanks to Williams. "Those shots down the stretch, we could have panicked, Weber said. "That's where Deron comes in. He's got a great feel for the game and he doesn't panic." NANCY ARMOUR (AP)

A Return Trip to Final Four in the Cards for Pitino

COLLEGE HOOPS | Rick Pitino has never been through anything quite like the kind of win that earned him a ticket to this year's Final Four.

Trailing by 20 against a West Virginia team on a practically unheard-of shooting streak, all Pitino could do was hope his Louisville team still had a chance once the Mountaineers finally cooled off.

The Cardinals did, and now one Pitino is the only men's coach to take three different programs to the Final Four — Providence, Kentucky, and now, Louisville.

"It is one of those nights that makes legends," Pitino said after the come-from-behind 93-85 overtime win Saturday.

Pitino

In notching his 449th career win, Pitino instituted a seven-man rotation — minus star player Francisco Garcia for the final 9:02 — to press and trap like that — at 5,300 feet in Albuquerque, no less? On most nights, it would have been too much to ask. Yet the Cardinals kept answering.

"To have no substitutes and do that, is why it's so incredibly remarkable to me," Pitino said. (AP)

Tennessee Joins the Elite 8

Ely's 23 points lift No. 1 seed over Texas Tech

WOMEN'S HOOPS | Shyra Ely scrawled her goal on the back of her sneakers: Homeward Bound. With the way Tennessee is playing, Ely might get her wish.

Ely scored 23 points and led the top-seeded Lady Vols into their 20th regional final with a 75-59 win over Texas Tech on Sunday. The Lady Vols (29-4) will play Rutgers in the Philadelphia Regional on Tuesday night for a trip to the Final Four in Ely's hometown of Indianapolis.

"I plan on going home next week and playing for a national championship," said Ely, the 2001 Indiana Miss Basketball from Ben Davis

High. "It would just be icing on the cake to finish my career where I started and to be in Indianapolis in front of friends and family."

The Lady Vols used a smothering defense to shut down the fourth-seeded Lady Raiders (24-8) and help coach Pat Summitt build on her NCAA record with her 881st career victory. She hopes to make it 884 by the end of the tournament.

"I think we're one of the teams that can win a championship," Summitt said.

Ely finished 8-for-11 from the floor and made eight of 11 free throws. DAN GELSTON (AP)

THE SCARLETT KNIGHTS

Let Ohio State All-American Jessica Davenport get her points, but shut down the rest of the Buckeyes for a 64-58 victory on Sunday in the regional semi-finals. Cappie Pondexter scored 24 points for Rutgers, who turned 15 Ohio State turnovers into 22 points. The 6-foot-5 Davenport finished with 22 points and 14 rebounds but got little support in the loss.

Sorenstam Eats Up Competition At the Nabisco

WOMEN'S GOLF | The suspense was over before the leaders left the putting green and headed for the first tee.

The question wasn't whether Annika Sorenstam would win her fifth straight tournament and the first major championship of the year, but by how much.

Plenty, it turned out, as Sorenstam turned a runaway into a blowout Sunday, shooting a final round 68 to finish at 15 under and win the Nabisco Championship by eight shots.

The win was Sorenstam's fifth in a row over two seasons, tying a record set by Nancy Lopez in 1978. It was also the 59th of her career and her eighth major championship win. TIM DAHLBERG (AP)

Mexico's Jared Borgetti, right, gets a head up on the U.S. in a 2-1 win on Sunday.

American Men Remain Winless in Mexico City

SOCCER | Mexico topped the United States 2-1 and the CONCACAF World Cup qualifying group on Sunday, and upheld its 71-year unbeaten record at home against the Americans.

Prolific striker Jared Borgetti and Antonio Naelson scored four minutes apart in the first half, and the United States could only reply through Eddie Lewis in the 59th, the first U.S. goal in Mexico since 1984.

"We took the field strong and used our advantages to get a win we needed," Borgetti said.

The lone U.S. goal came when captain Landon Donovan hit Lewis, who's shot landed just inside the right post in the 59th.

Mexico ended both the Americans' 16-game unbeaten streak overall and their 31-game streak without a loss to regional rivals.

The near-capacity crowd booed the U.S. national anthem and a spattering of fans chanted "Osama! Osama!" before play started, and shortly after Lewis' goal. (AP)

NATIONALS | Mike Piazza hit a mammoth home run and Jose Reyes tripled with the bases loaded, sending the New York Mets to a 9-4 victory over the Washington Nationals on Sunday.

Piazza, who also doubled, made it 5-1 in the fifth when he connected against Jon Rauch. The drive landed among the pine trees behind the adjacent practice fields.

New York pitchers combined to retire 14 consecutive batters until Jose Guillen led off the seventh with a homer, his third this spring. Brad Wilkerson also connected for Washington.

Brian Schneider and Endy Chavez drove in the other two runs.

John Patterson struck out eight batters in three innings, but also gave up four runs and was credited with the loss. (AP)

Get Games to Go

A roundup of fun for the long-awaited PlayStation Portable

VIDEO GAMES | With its sharp 4.3-inch liquid crystal screen, the PlayStation Portable provides an exciting, intense glimpse into the future of mobile gaming. Here's a look at a handful of new PSP games, ordered from best to worst:

→ TWISTED METAL: HEAD-ON, Sony Computer Entertainment, $40

This is demolition derby at its most twisted, combining crazy vehicles with awesome weapons. Shoot missiles, napalm and bullets at up to eight of your friends through the PSP's wireless connection.

→ LUMINES, Ubisoft, $40

Prepare for blockbusting bliss: Lumines is one of the best PSP games so far from a mindless entertainment standpoint. Billed as "puzzle fusion," match colors of falling blocks in sets of four and they will magically disappear.

→ TONY HAWK'S UNDERGROUND 2 REMIX, Activision, $50

"THUG 2 Remix" features a story mode with 13 single-player levels that takes you on a tour around the world from the streets of California to Barcelona.

→ WIPEOUT PURE, Sony Computer

BURN, BABY, BURN: "Twisted Metal: Head-On" lets PSP owners wreak havoc.

Entertainment, $40

Race your sleek antigravity crafts through some of the most futuristic tracks. A good addition for those who like racing mixed with some high-tech antics.

→ GRETZKY NHL, Sony Computer Entertainment, $40

Hockey fans, rejoice! Like it's PlayStation2 predecessor, get out your stick and puck and pit your favorite teams against one another on the ice. But don't forget, the Great One also has a few challenges of his own.

→ DARKSTALKERS CHRONICLE: THE CHAOS TOWER, Capcom, $40

From the makers of the infamous "Street Fighter" series comes a handheld title that takes you back to those mall arcade days, pitting you against some of the fiercest warriors around. And those familiar with the title will be happy to see all 18 of the five installments of the franchise.

→ SPIDER-MAN 2, Activision, $50

Scale walls, and sling your web as you save New York from the evil tentacles of Doc Ock. It comes with a training tutorial that teaches you the basics of being a superhero.

→ DYNASTY WARRIORS, KOEI, $50

Use powerful age-old weapons and tactical strategies to fight through battlefields lined with enemy soldiers. The game splits larger battlefields into smaller areas for faster, more intense fight sequences.

The Pay Phone Returns

GADGETRY | Coming to Australia: New pay phones with color touch screens and high-speed Internet connections for sending text, photo and video messages.

Australia's telecommunications giant Telstra, facing increased competition from mobile phones, is outfitting 10 interactive public telephones, at nearly $8,000 each, for a 10-week trial in Sydney's central business district.

E-mail and other Internet access will cost about $1.60 for 20 minutes, text messages are 23 cents each and video messages cost $1.20. Local calls are the same as those at conventional pay phones, 32 cents.

The future of pay phones could be in fancy multi-service Internet terminals.

Pay-phone use has declined over the past decade as more people carry mobile phones. About 88 percent of Australians have them, Telstra said.

More than half of Telstra's public phones currently allow customers to send text messages. Another 21 phones have been fitted with wireless technology that allows customers to connect remotely to the Internet from their laptops when near the phone. (AP)

'WHO' IS ON FIRST: Guess who topped the weekend box office? Bernie Mac and Ashton Kutcher, that's who. Their comedy "Guess Who" was the number-one movie with $21 million. "Miss Congeniality 2" opened in second place; the "The Ring 2" slipped to third.

SON OF THE PIONEERS: Shooter Jennings names his dad among his influences, along with Willie Nelson and Johnny Cash.

Straight Shooter

A second generation of Jennings is worthy of the country throne

FOOTSTEPS | Shooter Jennings sets his own outlaw country tone while paying respects to his old man from the outset of "Put the 'O' Back in Country," his debut album, which Universal South released March 1.

The title track, one of nine cuts either written or co-written by the artist, takes a hardcore country music attitude and quotes from

"Are You Ready for the Country," the Neil Young song that was a 1977 country hit for Shooter's dad, Waylon Jennings.

Shooter, who was born Waylon Albright Jennings, is the only child of Jessi Colter and the late country outlaw hero. The 26-year-old names his father first among his country influences, followed by such confederates as Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash and George Jones. In fact, Jones appears on the album, as does a fellow son of a country music giant, Hank Williams Jr.

Like the junior Williams, Jennings has a hard rock side, as evidenced by his acknowledged rock inspirations Led Zeppelin, Aerosmith and Guns N' Roses.

Leaving Nashville after high school, Jennings moved to Los Angeles and formed the rock band Stargunn. In Los Angeles, he found that he could pursue a rock career without the scrutiny of the judgmental Nashville country establishment, a move cynically recalled in the album track "Southern Comfort."

"What I love about rock is the energy," Jennings said. "Country is really about the lyrics and songwriting and storytelling .... So I took what I learned from rock and brought it into country."

But with "Put the 'O' Back in Country," Jennings is proud to proclaim a renewed commitment to his country heritage.

"In rock 'n' roll, you separate yourself from the audience, but in country you bring yourself down to their level and connect with them so they can understand you," he said.

The artist will portray his father in the upcoming feature film "Walk the Line." JIM BESSMAN (BILLBOARD)

Bloc Party's Call to Musical Action

The South London band improves on success

MUSIC | It's the oldest adage in rock: Success breeds imitation. The massive international mainstream acceptance of nervy dance-rock groups like Franz Ferdinand and the Killers has spawned a growing legion of young bands heavily indebted to early-'80s post-punk trailblazers such as Wire and Gang of Four.

Armed with a cheeky moniker that evokes perestroika and neighborhood discos, South London's Bloc Party has risen to the top of this often-derivative pack.

While its hyperactive debut

LP, "Silent Alarm," released last week on Atlantic Records, features the angular guitar riffs and driving rhythms that define its comrades, Bloc Party manages to transcend many of the clichés and pratfalls that countless similar bands encounter.

Dynamic frontman Kele Okerere leads his lock-step rhythm section through impassioned rave-ups — such as the opening track, "Like Eating Glass," and quieter ruminations such as the emo-tinged "So Here We Are" — with remarkable ease for a debut album.

Bloc Party lead singer Kele Okerere puts passion in the post-punk mix.

With disaffected singers cluttering the indie landscape, Okerere's cathartic yelps and impassioned wails propel "Silent Alarm" to prominence.

The lead single "Banquet" takes a page from the Franz Ferdinand playbook and seamlessly abridges the best of Bloc Party. In a perfect world, this track would thrust the band into the national spotlight.

In the meantime, be happy you can still catch Bloc Party at a small venue. PETER DENTON

Bloc Party will play the Black Cat, 1811 14th St. NW; with the Ponys and Pony Up, on Sat., April 9, at 9 p.m. (U St.-Cardozo)

Historical Correctness

An American author takes a new look at 'Huckleberry Finn'

BOOKS | Well over a century after it was abolished, slavery lingers in the American psyche. Each generation seems compelled to confront the institution anew in search of modern understandings.

The latest turn in the national conversation is toward a more intimate look into the lives of slaves, led by a novel that revisits Mark Twain's classic and racially charged tale, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

"My Jim" is the first-person story of Sadie, the wife of Huck's enslaved traveling companion. The aim of its author, Nancy Rawles, was to reimagine Jim as more than a runaway drifting down the Mississippi River with a delinquent youth. Rawles wanted to consider the familiar tale from the perspective of the family Jim left behind — and to consider the shattered families of many slaves.

More writers, historians and filmmakers are approaching slavery much like Rawles.

In February, PBS aired the documentary "Slavery and the Making of America," offering personal sketches of individual slaves to illustrate the outrage and anguish of Africans in the New World. And a recent book by journalist Betty DeRamus, "Forbidden Fruit: Love Stories From the Underground Railroad," offers an intimate perspective on the clandestine anti-slavery network.

Last year, "Mrs. Lincoln and Mrs. Keckly" offered an intimate look at Mary Todd Lincoln and Elizabeth Keckly, a slave who was the first lady's seamstress and friend. Meanwhile, Edward P. Jones' "The Known World," an epic tale of a black Virginia family who owned slaves, won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction.

Rawles, a Seattle-based writer and amateur historian, researched the personal histories of slaves, traveling to Twain's hometown of Hannibal, Mo.

In "My Jim," Rawles shows Jim's owner, "Miss Watson," pulling him from his family. In "Huck Finn," Jim is portrayed as superstitious; in "My Jim," he has powerful spiritual vision that helps his family and earns the respect of whites.

This was an opportunity to really bring out the individuals who lived this history," said Rawles.

RECENT HISTORY: A well-done DVD explores Cobain's band, hometown and legacy.

The Making Of a Phenom

'Nevermind' the albums; a new DVD tells Nirvana's story

DVDS | "Nirvana: Nevermind — Classic Album DVD" (Eagle Rock Entertainment) explores the band, the Seattle music scene that would be dubbed "grunge" and the making of the band's classic album "Nevermind." Lead singer Kurt Cobain took his own life, leaving us with drummer Dave Grohl, bassist Krist Novoselic and an assortment of others to talk candidly about the band and how it gained traction.

There are effective sit-down interviews with biographer Charles R. Cross and Rolling Stone senior editor David Fricke describing Cobain's hometown of Aberdeen, about 110 miles from Seattle. It was an important influence on Cobain, Fricke explains, not because it had a burgeoning rock scene, but because it had none. Youth there were indeed disaffected and looking for a way out. Cobain's way out was through music and Seattle.

This is by no means a performance documentary, although there are snippets from some early shows. The music is mixed nicely in the background during the interviews, and there are great black and white photos of a young Cobain tossing his hair about on stage as an adoring audience gets to know the band at some small shows.

Nirvana borrowed drummers from the Melvins and Mudhoney before settling on Grohl, who was in San Francisco with a punk band called Scream when Seattle came knocking.

It didn't take long for things to gel, Novoselic says, and by the time DGC Records had wooed the band away from Sub Pop to record "Nevermind" on a $60,000 budget, Nirvana was "a tight machine" chomping at the bit to get the thing done.

There's decent bonus footage with interviews about hiring Grohl and even a short bit with Spencer Elden, perhaps the most famous naked baby on the planet when he posed for the cover shot. He's all hip with his baseball cap cocked sideways now as he reflects on the famous photo.

The Accused Is for Hire

Can an actor get work after being on Court TV? Yes and no

NEXT STEP | For hire: diminutive, silver-haired, 71-year-old TV and movie actor. Known as a perfectionist and loner. Skilled at playing tough guys. Cops his specialty. Please, no villain roles at this time.

After six decades as a Hollywood actor, Robert Blake, best known as the Emmy-winning 1970s television detective Baretta, would like to get back to work.

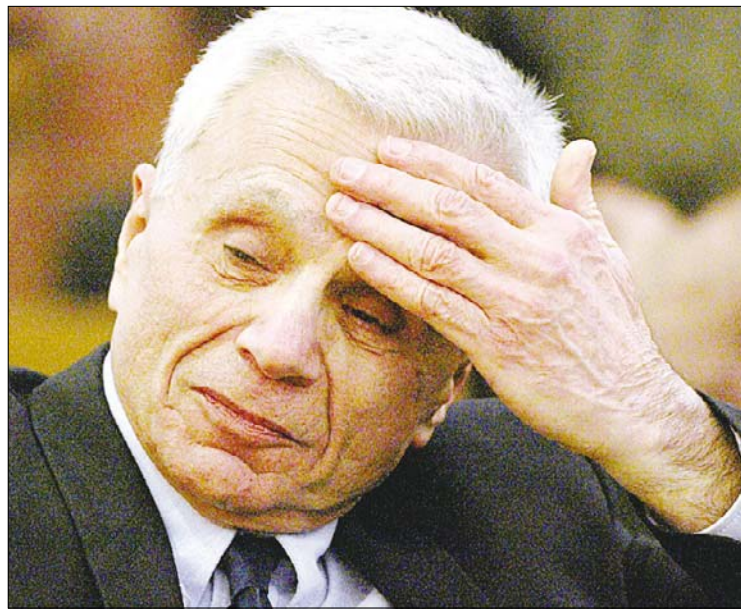

The question is, does Hollywood have a job for a man who, some believe, got away with murder?

Industry insiders say it won't be easy — in part simply because Blake is at an age when acting jobs are scarce anyway. In fact, his last role was in the 1997 David Lynch film "Lost Highway," and he wasn't the star.

Jay Bernstein, Blake's onetime manager, noted that in Hollywood anything can happen and often does. "True to form in Hollywood, they'll never work with you again — until they need you." But he added: "I think he has a shot to get back in the business, but for any of us who are anywhere near his age, it's hard to do."

Over the years, stars who were accused of committing lesser crimes have managed to dig themselves out of legal scrapes and revive their careers. Rocker Tommy Lee and actress Halle Berry were both able to overcome their arrests — Lee for domestic abuse, Berry for felony hit-and-run — by going public and admitting their mistakes.

Actor Robert Downey Jr. never denied that he had a drug problem, and the entertainment industry forgave him, but O.J. Simpson, acquitted of two sensational murders, is perceived by many to be guilty and may never win Hollywood's forgiveness.

Working against Blake is the fact that his career was pretty much over before the murder charge. But notoriety has its own appeal.

Stephen J. Cannell, who created "Baretta," said there is enough "reasonable doubt" in the Blake case that the public and Hollywood might cut him some slack.

"He's definitely attained some degree of celebrity, and the question really comes down to how much infamy is attached to this celebrity," Cannell said.

THE GEORGE
UNIVERSITY
WASHINGTON DC

GW Has Great Opportunities for Skilled Trades People!

The George Washington University's Facilities Management (FM) department is seeking skilled trades people for the following positions:

Electrician (Requisition# R000012980)

Engineer 1st Class (Requisition# R000013655)

Jr. Maintenance Mechanic (Requisition# R000012975)

Plumber (Requisition# R000013124)

The Plumber and the Electrician positions require high school graduation or an equivalent combination of training and experience plus completion of an applicable 4-year apprentice program. In addition, the Electrician requires licensure as a journeyman electrician by the District of Columbia. The Engineer position requires high school graduation or an equivalent combination of training and experience and four years of experience in the operation and maintenance of high and low pressure steam boilers and heating and HVAC units. In addition, the Engineer requires licensure in the District of Columbia as a 1st Class Engineer. The Jr. Maintenance Mechanic requires completion of a certificate course in heating and air conditioning equipment repair -or- two years of experience in the repair and maintenance of building operating equipment. To obtain more details on these vacancies, go to www.gwu.edu/~hrs/eo or visit our Human Resource Services office located at 2033 K Street, NW (entrance on the 21st Street side), Suite 220, Monday through Friday between 8:30 AM- 5:00 PM.

GW offers a comprehensive compensation package that includes health insurance, a retirement plan, and tuition benefits for an employee, their spouse or same-sex domestic partner, and dependent children. To apply, please refer to the requisition number and submit a resume on line via the Staff Employment Opportunities Search feature available at: www.gwu.edu/~hrs/eo, or submit a resume, which includes the requisition number, to: The George Washington University, Dept. HRS, 2033 K Street NW, Suite 220, Washington, DC 20052. Fax: (202) 994-9609.

Museums draw back the curtain on their unseen collections

In most museums, what a visitor views is but a small, carefully selected sampling of the institution's holdings.

But the Brooklyn Museum's new addition allows visitors to see hundreds of items that didn't make the cut. The 5,000-square-foot storage center is packed with row upon row of sleek shelving stuffed with furniture and decorative objects. Flatware, toasters and commemorative plates are displayed near dozens of Tiffany glass lamps and a large sculpture of a gorilla's head. A 1950s pink bicycle stands near ceiling-high rows of paintings.

This is Luce Center for American Art, and it is among a growing number of visible storage centers in the world. Art experts say visible storage is a good option for museums to show the public the breadth of a specific collection, but they caution that it should complement, not replace, traditional exhibits.

About 800 objects are housed in the Luce, including all American paintings not formerly on display. Objects that would likely not be exhibited find homes at the center, such as a piece of furniture from the late 1800s that looks like a piano but folds out into a bed, or a chair fashioned to look like a ribbon.

But there's never enough space, curators say. The Brooklyn Museum has thousands of objects still in storage, as do most other museums. "This place would have to be as big as the Pentagon to fit our entire collection," said curator Barry Harwood.

The nonprofit Henry Luce Foundation is at the forefront of visible storage — the organization has helped fund four centers, including a 1988 project for the American Wing of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. Costs have since risen, and the Brooklyn Museum and the Smithsonian American Art Museum, currently under construction in Washington, D.C., received $10 million each to build storage facilities and to fund other museum projects.

In the end, curators agree, visible storage won't take over as the primary way to exhibit art. Curators hope, however, that visible storage inspires visitors to discuss a collection, or to learn more about objects that perhaps aren't famous.

"Yes, there is a hierarchy. The most important objects will be shown," said Linda Ferber, the Brooklyn Museum's American art curator. "But it takes on a greater meaning when it is shown with other pieces from the era, other works of art that either complement or refute the famous work."

Lisa de Moraes

Channel Surfing

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday and dished on "American Idol," "The Office" and Sarah Jessica Parker. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

OK, let's forget about all the media coverage of the "American Idol" phone number mess. Who do you really like/dislike so far this season? I like Jessica, Bo and Carrie (now that she finally came out of her shell). I'm hoping that Scott and Nikko get sent home soon.

I love this season. A couple weeks ago I liked Anwar but he's disappointed lately. This week I like Constantine and, yes, I agree with him that "I Think I Love You" rocks — at least when he sings it. I know — now I've scared you.

Why must they make an American adaptation of "The Office"? I think the original would go over very well on NBC — or are Americans really that snobby?

Americans are really that snobby ... seriously, they are.

How is it possible that Sarah Jessica Parker got 38 MILLION DOLLARS for those lame Gap ads? What about her or those ads are worth anywhere near that? Does she have some sort of major chemistry/glamour/style that I just don't see? And yes, I'm extremely jealous.

Major glam. That woman can wear a dress like nobody's business. And yes, we're all jealous she got $38 million to do a handful of Gap ads.

Have you noticed that at least once per week, someone on "The Apprentice" says the phrase, "At the end of the day ..."? Aaaaargh.

No, but thanks for letting me know so that I will no longer be able to watch the show without being driven crazy by that.

What do you know about those trip-lets who are on the Cingular commercials? They are cute and it looks like they can have a future on "O.C." or some other teen show.

OK — YOU are watching way too much television. And that's saying something, coming from me.

Lawyers Win in Schiavo Case

WHO WINS in the Terri Schiavo tragedy? I'm ashamed to say it's the lawyers. They've been working overtime (paid or not) for both parties, building their resumes, wallets and public profiles along the way. Lawyers will also realize a windfall in terms of people seeking to create wills, living wills and other documents.

—JIM KYGER
Alexandria, Va.

Reservations and U.S. Law

THE WRITER OF Friday's letter about the shooting in Red Lake, Minn.,

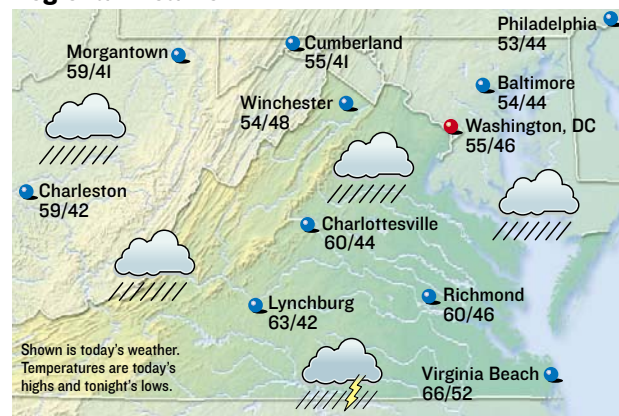

has his facts wrong. Native people don't live on reservations because "they don't want to be subject to your laws" — they live there because the U.S. government interned them there. These are sovereign nations which have the greatest respect for the laws of the United States.

FAILURE

Applegate's Growth As Person to Be Stunted

"Sweet Charity," hobbled by star CHRISTINA APPLLEGATE's broken foot and weak ticket sales, has canceled its planned run on Broadway, the producers said Friday. Applegate had been eager to take on the role. "This needed to happen for me to become a better person, a better artist," she said in February. "If I don't do this, I will regret it for the rest of my life." (AP)

All of us must face personal failures.

CLICHES

Fat Lady, Singing, Etc.

DEBORAH VOIGT, a superstar soprano who was fired from a production last year for being overweight, underwent gastric bypass surgery, her publicist said Saturday. She reportedly had the surgery done in New York last June, months after she was fired from a production of "Ariadne auf Naxos" at Covent Garden in London because she couldn't fit into the costume for the title character. ### AUTOMOTIVE

Next: The P. Diddy Windshield Wiper

SEAN 'P. DIDDY' COMBS is joining forces with a Kansas City manufacturer to produce a line of custom aluminum rims for high-end American- and German-made vehicles, it was announced Thursday. SJC Wheels LLC will produce and sell "Sean John Wheels," named for the entertainer. They hit stores next month, retailing at between $700 and $3,000 each. (AP)

TECHNOLOGY

CIA Wishes to Inspect This Video Studio/Pen Device

The lawyer for rapper C-MURDER, who angered authorities by recording parts of his upcoming music video and compact disc behind bars, has agreed to take only a pencil into jailhouse meetings. The rapper, whose real name is Corey Miller, has been inside the Jefferson Parish, La., jail for more than three years on a second-degree murder charge. During that time, a music video for his new single showed him in jail. Attorney Ron Rakosky can now use only a pencil because pens are hollow and can be used to carry song lyrics. (AP)

VENTURES

Oprah Looks Forward To Rebranding Hawaii 'Harpo Islands Inc.'

OPRAH WINFREY may be getting into the vacation rental business. The Maui, Hawaii, County Council has given preliminary approval to a bill granting O.W. Ranch LLC a five-year conditional permit to operate a 12-bedroom vacation rental in Kula. Tom Welch, attorney for O.W. Ranch, would not confirm the celebrity's involvement in the venture. Gideon Kaufman, an Aspen, Colo.-based legal representative for Winfrey and an officer of O.W. Ranch, said: "I'll let the initials stand for themselves." O.W. Ranch lists an address in care of Bob Greene, Winfrey's friend and personal trainer. (AP)

STRATEGY

Sizemore Employs Proven Tactic of Acting Crazy

TOM SIZEMORE was sentenced to 17 months in jail and four months in a drug treatment facility for repeatedly failing drug tests while on probation. Sizemore sobbed and begged for another chance as he delivered a rambling speech before being sentenced Thursday by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Antonio Barreto Jr. Later Thursday, he was sentenced in a separate felony methamphetamine case to additional inpatient drug treatment. Sizemore, 43, was allowed to remain free while he appeals a domestic violence conviction. Outside court, he gave a high five and directed an obscene gesture at the press. (AP)

BREAKUPS

Do Not Grunt Gently Into That Good Night

RUSSELL CROWE's band, Thirty Odd Foot of Grunts, "would seem to have dissolved/evolved," said the actor in a posting on the group's Web site. Crowe said an album is coming, but with a new lineup. Crowe anticipates releasing the new disc — described as "soft, gentle, expressive" — outside of the "formalized corporate structure of music." (AP)

Friday's Solution

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Questions you ask may not be answered right away — but the search for satisfaction can bring you a treasured kind of satisfaction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your drive and enthusiasm are sure to prove contagious. Others will thank you for pointing the way to greater pleasure and profit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Overlook nothing and you will understand nearly everything that comes your way. What you do with new information is pivotal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your calm reserve may be challenged by someone who is eager to shake you up in some way. Don't succumb; you can avoid all such traps.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) What will affect you most is the impersonal attention of those who are asking too much from you. It's time once again to put your foot down.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The frivolity and casual attitude of those around you is not for you. You're more interested in the serious side of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may have the opportunity to start all over again — and you won't want to let it pass you by. You'll have the chance to do it right.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Balance excitement with practicality. The need for both can be satisfied, but do take a little planning and preparation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You're likely to be invigorated and rejuvenated as a result of a chance encounter you could not in any way avoid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may find yourself being challenged on many fronts. Don't answer aggression with unusual defensiveness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Don't restrict yourself to the usual or the routine. Explore more options than you have been acknowledging recently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll be intrigued by someone who offers you more in the way of challenge than support. What is it you find so attractive?
